Forsan ISD Parents, Students and Community;

Thank you each for your patience as Forsan ISD works to protect our community. The current situation with the coronavirus is very unique. The information and guidance being provided to us by the Centers for Disease Control (CDC) and the Texas Education Agency is coming quickly and is changing from day to day. This situation requires a great deal of flexibility by all.

Forsan ISD will be closed to students during the week of March 16 through 20 in order to do our part in slowing down the virus. The CDC is currently recommending much longer closures so I suggest that parents watch closely for updates. We will evaluate the situation daily and will make a decision about March 23rd and following later this week.

The Commissioner of Education, Mr. Mike Morath, is holding daily conference calls with superintendents across the state. Each day has provided new information and I assume that will continue for the foreseeable future. As of Saturday's conference call there were about 1/3 of the public school districts in Texas closed for next week. The local school closures were not included in that number. Several states have closed all their schools including New Mexico.

Again, thank you for your patience. Forsan ISD will be working to continue our educational efforts with our students even if this process is lengthy. Please watch our website (www.forsan.esc18.net) for more information. Each teacher will be working on ways to reach his/her students whether through the website, through YouTube, through Google Classroom, packets of information, or some other delivery method. The website and social media posts will give additional guidance in the near future.

We hope to calmly and methodically problem solve as the we take on a challenge that has never been faced before in modern times. We will do this together and make some great memories together.

Thank you each and God Bless!

Randy Johnson
